SAYS HE WAS HOWARD'S PAL. Wm. Clark Tells a Story in Connection with the Footpad Case.

On Saturday William Clark was arrested by patrolmen Thorne and Streit on charges of drunkenness and vagrancy. Clark was arrested at No. 139 Indiana avenue, where he entered in an intoxicated condition, asking for money with which to buy something to eat. The occupant noticed a wild look about Clark and questioned him as to the cause. He replied that detectives were on his trail and had been since the night that Howard, the footpad, was shot and

"Why, what connection have you with Howard?" was the question. "Well, that's all right, but it don't make much difference to you, does it? You see, Howard and I were old pals, and the police got on to the fact and have been shadowing me ever since."

The occupant knew the condition of Clark and doubted his story at first, but his earnestness in relating it finally led the woman in charge to believe that the man might prove a valuable witness in clearing up the footpad affair. Some one chanced to appear at the door, and the occupant gave the second caller a mean-

The latter left the house and soon appeared at the door with officers Thorne and Streit, Clark in the meanwhile being entertained by promises of help. Clark pleaded guilty in Police Court Monday to the charge of drunkenness, and the charge of vagrancy was dismissed. He was fined 5 and given a workhouse sentence, which When the prisoner was being taken from the court officers Thorne and Streit made an effort to attract the attention of Judge Stubbs, intending to re-late the Howard incident, but for some unknown reason they could not until it was too late to consider the case. The police are working on the case, but no credence is given Clark's story.

HORN PROTECTED HIS JOB.

He Put an Insulting Trie to Flight on Two Occasions.

Monday night, as James Horn, a painter, was at work in the drug store of Lewis Gable, at No. 828 North Illinois street, three men drove up directly in front of the door and requested Horne to step out for a few moments' conversation. They accused him of being a nonunion workman. Horn defended himself by stating that he had taken the job himself by contract as he was compelled to work for a living. The three grew insolent and one made an insulting remark to Horn which was re-sented by a blow that sent the man sprawl-ing in the street. The men drove away but returned later when the loudest one of the party announced that he intended to wipe up the sidewalk with Horn. He advanced toward Horn, who seized a baseball bat and dealt his antagonist a severe blow on the head, which felled him to the ground. The man regained consciousness later and was driven rapidly away by his two companions in the buggy. A large crowd had collected in the meantime, but all believed that Horn had acted in self-fiefense. The three men are unknown.

GRANTED NO FRANCHISE.

Farmers' Electrical Company Disappointed-Farmers as Remonstrants.

W. R. Myers and J. C. Greene, representing the Farmers' Electrical Railroad Company, appeared before the County Commissioners yesterday in the interests of that company. The commissioners refused to take any action upon their petition for a franchise. The commissioners received a petition signed by between two hundred and three hundred persons, remonstrating against the granting to the Citizens' company the right to cross the Michigan-street bridge. The petitioners were to a large extent farmers residing west of the city. Kind Words Instead of Ropes. C. R. Mahan, the father-in-law of James Shields, the soldier who was taken to Manchester to be married, says that the reports of attempting to lynch Shields are entirely untrue. Shields reached Manchester on Saturday, and was not married until Monday. Mr. Mahan says he married of his own free will. Says the father-in-law: "He was met here by some three or four citizens who took James by the hand and welcomed him back instead of meeting him with ropes." Mr. Mahan says there were no other girls in the case.

EXPERT FOR ASPHALT

One May Be Employed for Street Improvements This Summer.

New Appointments to Be Made in the City Engineer's Office-The Cabinet Meeting.

The Department of Public Works is now considering the question of employing an asphalt expert, whose business it will be to look after the city's interest in the way of asphalt payements and see that the city gets the asphalt for which it contracts. If the expert is employed his duties will be to make all tests of asphalt used, in order to insure first-class work with first-class material. He will be upon the ground where the pavement is being laid and will make tests from samples of the material as it is brought to the street to be laid. He will also see that the asphaltum, as it is laid, is of a proper temperature. This is one of the most important features in the laying of pavements with this material. The distance the asphaltum is hauled before it is laid is an important consideration. It is necessary that the material be of a given temperature, and if it is of a different degree the asphalt, after being laid, is soft and apt to soon sink below the level, forming a City Engineer Brown said yesterday that heretofore there had been no inspection of the asphalt as it was laid, and the city had been proceeding on the presumption that the contractors laid the material contracted for and laid it in a proper manner. The city engineer said if the city let down the bars and admitted all companies to com-petition it would be necessary, for the pro-tection of the city's interest, to have a practical asphalt man at the work to see that the material laid was the same as the city contracted for. To do this chemical tests would be necessary and would be made. If all companies were not admitted, he said, mechanical tests would probably be all that would be required. It is yet an unsettled question as to whether the city will lay sufficient asphalt pavements this year to warrant the employment of an asphalt expert. That depends upon the action of the Council upon the Alabama-street re-monstrance. If the Council refuses to pass the ordinance authorizing the Board of Public Works to proceed with this improvement and lay asphalt upon that street the remonstrants upon New Jersey and Ash streets will probably resert to the Council to defeat those pavements. These are the only long stretches of asphalt pavement which the board had contemplated this year, and if they are defeated there will probably be but little asphalt laid during Nearly a Million in Barret Bonds. The number of persons who take advantage of the Barrett law in paying for public improvements is rapidly increasing, and at present there are $817,251.13 of bonds issued. In the city treasury there is $16,596.88 in the guarantee fund. This is the amount deducted from the pay of the contractors to insure the keeping of the street in repair for the period of guarantee. The city cannot the being the street in the period of guarantee. not use it unless the contractor fails to perform his work properly, and thus far it has not had occasion to draw upon the fund. In the meantime the county treasurer receives the interest from the amount.

Appointments on Thursday.

At a meeting of the Board of Public Safety, to be held on Thursday morning, the percentage of examination for applicants for appointment to the police force will be fixed, and the names of those receiving the proper percentage passed to the eligible list. It is probable that there will also be several appointments to the force.

Jobs in the Engineer's Office. There is a rush of candidates for appointment to the city engineer's force caused by the announcement that the force was to be increased. City Engineer Brown says he will appoint men who can act as draughtsmen as well as inspectors.

Pawnbrokers Must Pay. Controller Trusler has taken steps to collect from pawnbrokers the license fee which a recent decision in the Police Court held they were liable for as a class of money lenders on chattel mortgages. The police will collect the license fee.

Inspect Streets to Be Improved. The different members of the Board of Public Works spent a portion of the day yesterday in inspecting streets which the board may have improved. Several alleys were also inspected.

A WEALTHY BROTHER CAME.

James Renan Found in the Poor House After a Long Separation.

James Renan, at one time an employe of Kingan & Co., was admitted to the county poor farm on Feb. 14. He had been there but a short time when it developed that he was a victim of quick consumption. He realized his condition. He had been a roving character for years, and his friends and relatives had not heard of him during that time. Nevertheless, Renan thought that a friendship of the gone by days might still exist, and accordingly wrote to Julia Rabbit, a sister who resides in Pittsburg, tell-ing her of his condition. She answered that she had notified a brother who was living in the oil fields of Pennsylvania and who was very wealthy. The wealthy brother at once telegraphed to Superintendent Yeager that he was on his road to this city. Last Friday morning he arrived here and went directly to the farm. The two brothers wept as children in each other's arms. Their brotherly feeling had not vanished in the twenty years of separation. The brother at once made arrangements to take Renan to his mountain home in western Pennsylvania, where they will battle with the dreaded disease. The two left here Friday

The Cigarmakers' Action.

About one hundred cigarmakers held a meeting at the bricklayers' hall, yesterday, and appointed Henry Thienes, Clarence Gorman, W. H. Bentlinger, J. W. Stumph and Fred Miller a committee to draft resolutions expressive of the sentiment of the meeting in relation to the Wilson bill. The cigarmakers are bitterly opposed to the tobacco feature of the Wilson bill, as it is inimical to their interests, and they are fighting hard to have it eliminated. They will hold another meeting next Saturday afternoon on the same subject.

A MYSTERIOUS COUPLE.

A Woman Dons Masculine Attire, but Fails to Shingle Her Hair.

Monday afternoon when the Big Four local freight from the east drew into the yards two passengers alighted. They were a strange looking couple and attracted some attention as they passed out of the yards on to Dillon street and walked rapidly in the direction of English avenue. One of the new arrivals was a roughly dressed man of forty years. The other was a slender, dark complexioned youth apparently not over seventeen. The boy wore a natty suit of dark clothes and a light colored slouch hat that failed to conceal the hair pins in the knot of dark hair that adorned the back of his head. His feet were small and were incased in a new pair of ladies' walking shoes. The slender companion of the rough looking man was a woman, as subsequent developments revealed. The couple spent nearly all the afternoon in the vicinity of English avenue soliciting assistance from housewives in the way of cash or food. Yesterday morning the conductor of the freight which brought the pair to this city reported the singular actions of his passengers to the police and patrolman Lonnis was detailed to look them out. He put in the day searching for them, but had failed to locate them last night. The conductor stated that they boarded his train at Shelbyville. He was not long in discovering the identity of the small passenger and demanded an explanation of the man. The latter said that the woman was his sister, and that they were trying to make their way East. They concluded that the trip could be made easier by the wo-man donning male attire. She disliked the idea of sacrificing her hair and hoped to conceal it by the large hat which unfortu-nately for her, failed to cover the coil at the back of her head.

TRUSTEE GOLD'S DEFENSE.

Why He Will Not Give Green-e a Chance to Grab a Fee.

The resistance to Green-e Smith's efforts to collect unexpended balances in the tultion funds from various townships is increasing, and a petition for rehearing will be presented to the Supreme Court. A. G. Fosdyke, collector upon commission for Green-e Smith, has demanded of Trustee Gold, of Center township, that he turn over to the State $1,400 which it is claimed is the amount of the balance in the tuition fund in this township due the State under the recent decision. It is said the Attorney-general will not claim fees on any money paid in without additional suit, but Trustee Gold refuses to pay in. Nearly all of the township trustees will join in seeking a rehearing, and if they are unsuccessful will probably file new suits based upon other grounds than the one recently decided. The rehearing will be asked upon the grounds that the law which was passed in March, 1893, could not apply to the school funds pertaining to the payment of bills for the school year ending in the same spring, and that the school trustees acquire vested rights in the school funds which the State cannot abrogate. Trustee Gold says Center township has an independent defense. He says he receives from the State for tuition purposes $5,300, and from local taxes $14,000. the total amount he spent about $15,000, leaving a balance of $4,000. On account of this balance he has made no levy this year. He claims that he has spent all the State's money, and has no balance in the fund furnished by the State.

THE GASOLINE IGNITED.

Mrs. T. S. Graves Seriously Burned While Cleaning House.

Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. T. S. Graves, residing at No. 317 North New Jersey street, was severely burned by gasoline. The family were cleaning house and some carpets were being cleaned with the gasoline when, in some unknown manner, the gasoline became ignited and the flames communicated to Mrs. Graves's clothes. She rushed from the house with her clothes all afire. A driver for Albert Gall, who was bringing a carpet to the house, seeing the condition of affairs, seized the carpet and wrapped it around Mrs. Graves, thus smothering the flames. It was found that a great portion of her body had been burned, though not very deep. After Mrs. Graves had been brought into the house and her injuries had been attended, the house was discovered to be on fire. This caused considerable excitement, but the fire department extinguished the flames before there was any extensive damage.

Drs. Dudley and Ferguson, the attending physicians, thought Mrs. Graves's strong vitality would enable her to recover, although she is in a dangerous condition. Mrs. Graves is a daughter of Michael Sells, at present in California, and the wife of President Graves of the Indianapolis Driving Club. On Monday, Mrs. Graves sang at the State meeting of the McAll Mission.

An Explosion of Gasoline. An explosion of gasoline started a fire yesterday afternoon at No. 471/2 Massachusetts avenue, but the fire department extinguished it after a slight loss. Fire yes-terday morning caused a loss of $10 to the house in the rear of No. 138 Wilson street.

MRS. LYNN MAY DIE.

An Aged Woman Knocked Down by a Wagon on Washington Street.

Parmelia Lynn, aged seventy years, widow of Adam Lynn, and residing at No. 131 Elizabeth street, was, perhaps, fatally injured by being run over by a delivery wagon driven by Fred Blummet and owned by C. Wilson. The accident occurred at the corner of Illinois and Washington streets, yesterday afternoon, about 2 o'clock. Mrs. Lynn stepped from the sidewalk and was walking to the street to board a Blake street car when she was struck by the shafts of the wagon and thrown to the ground, two wheels passing over her. She was removed to the City Hospital. Drs. Earp and Durham, the attending physiclans, found that she had suffered the frac-ture of a thigh bone beside severe internal injuries. It is not thought that she will

Tim Ferriter's Usual Prank.

Police Sergeant Hyland was nursing a dislocated thumb last night, the result of an interview with the wily Timothy Ferriter. The sergeant undertook to arrest the combative Tim at the corner of Concordia and Meek streets and was compelled to use both his club and fist before he could capture his man. A sister of the prisoner came upon the scene while the officer was awaiting the arrival of the patrol and announced her intention of rescuing her brother, Sergeant Hyland, with the gallantry for which he is famous, persuaded Miss Ferriter to withdraw.

Fifth Ward Lincoln League.

The Fifth Ward Lincoln League met last night in the hall at No. 327 West Washington street with about 125 people present. The meeting was called to order by President White, and an election of the remaining officers was had, which resulted in the election of W. E. Carter as secretary, Frank Jones vice president and Dr. Petti-john treasurer. Speeches were made by a number of candidates who were present. The regular meeting night of the league has been changed to Wednesday night.

Buys Iron Hall Property.

The Tribe of Ben-Hur becomes the possessor of a portion of the paraphernalia owned by the late Iron Hall. Yesterday Receiver Failey reported to the court the sale of the following property to the newly-organized tribe: One hundred supply trunks, 76 bailot boxes, 175 gavels, 62 record books. The consideration was $79.45. Judge Winters approved the sale and directed the delivery of the goods.

An Impregnable Organization.

Marcus R. Sulzer, president of the State Lincoln League, says that before next October the Republican party will be so compactly organized in this State that it will be wholly impregrable. Since the annual meeting here in February he has spoken in ten cities in the State, and has engagements that will occupy his time all of next month.

NEW IDEA OF SOCIETY

Prof. Geo. Herron Gives Advanced Views on Social Problem.

Iowa's Noted Writer on Religious Topics Appears Before the Congregational Club-The Social Strain.

Prof. George D. Herron, D. D., of the chair of applied Christianity of Iowa College, read a paper before the Congregational Club last night on "The Christian Constitution of Society." The paper dealt with the social problem in a somewhat new light, upon a presumption that society and Christianity were synonymous terms and interchangeable one with the other. He said the social strain which the country had endured for the winter past was the first real test of our civilization, and that the terrible facts of the real situation had been suppressed. The press had not published the real situation and the real causes of the social strain. The cause was one more profound than had been given to the public. It was the direct result of the centralization of wealth in the hands of the few, which produced a despotism, with hidden chains. The social strain was without a single rational excuse and was the result of mistaking expedience for justice. It had not been produced by war or a sermon in any particular, but a political document and was delivered upon a political occasion, and was probably the result of years of study, observation and preparation. The Jews were expecting in the Messiah a political leader, and the Sermon on Mount was the divine politics in answer to their expectations. The beatitudes are its preamble and were a political revolution. It cannot be intelligently studied except in the light of what it really is, the consti-tution of society, rational and intended to be obeyed, the speaker contended, and nothing so witnessed the moral apostasy of the church as its postponing the obedience to some remote age away in the future, a distant age of peace. It is intended for the present and all time. It is imbedie to look upon it as unattainable. The Christian constitution of society is not a church, the gathering thus has never been the idea of God. Men attempt to appropriate the power of God without surrendering their souls to the soul of God. This they have done by the tower of Babylon, the temple of Jerusalem, the philosophy of Greece, the law of Rome and the theology of to-day.

The destruction of the Jews was due to their mistaking religious organization for righteousness; the people shut their eyes to the God of the living and worshiped the God of the dead. The religious institutions seek to draw men to themselves and not to God. They have become an end instead of a means to attain an end. Jesus believed in God, the people, and even the politicians, but He did not believe in the religious institutions for the reason that they had become the end instead of the means. When God and the people get at one another there will be a terrific crumbling of all intermediate agencies. Jesus Christ would save the church unfaith in the living God and from the belief that opinions about God are belief in God. The person of Jesus Christ is the Christian constitution of society, and there is no such thing as individual righteousness. There can be no righteousness unless there is some one to be righteous to. We have not had society yet. We talk of the com-ing of anarchy, and it is with us now. This is the day of anarchy. Society is a di-vine phantom which we have been pursuing all the time. In not a single instance in the whole New Testament did Christ permit a man to follow Him simply for the salvation of his own soul. When He said, "What does it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul," He was quoting an old law. He permitted men to follow Him that they might become living sacri-fices for the salvation of the whole world, and a man is not a Christian unless he does that. To be a Christian and to be righteous are vastly different. The problem of the church to-day is not "Were the holy men of old inspired?" but "Are there men to-day great enough and sacrificial enough to be burned to ashes for the truth?" Personal and Society.

Mrs. John C. Dean introduced Mrs. Wright, formerly of Grand Rapids, Mich., who has come to this city to reside, to a number of her friends yeste day after-noon by giving a 4-o'clock ten. The guests were met by the hostess, who presented Mrs. Wright. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. May Wright Sewall, Mrs. C. S. Denny, Mrs. James B. Black, Mrs. John W. Kern, Mrs. Thomas Dean, Mrs. Edward Dean, Mrs. William Pirtle Herod, Miss Beaty and Miss Robbins. In the drawing-room a few Bermuda lilies and vases of freisia freighted the air with their fragrance and yellow tulips graced the table in the library. Re-freshments were served in the blue deco-rated dining room and all the appointments were in harmony with the prevailing hue. On the table a silver candelabra rested on a handsomely embroidered linen, wrought with forget-me-nots, and strewn over the cloth were small bunches of the same flower, tied with blue ribbons. The candles were blue, and all the service was of old blue china. Miss Mary Browning Butler, in a blue gown, sat at one end of the table and served ices and Mrs. Ernest Robert Keith, also in blue, poured tea at the other. The assisting ladies were Mrs. Howard A. Dill, Miss Georgia Butler, Miss Helen Walker, Miss Caroline Farquhar, Miss Jessie Bybee, Misses Gladys Wright, Mary and Belle Dean. The guests were mostly married friends of the hostess.

tian constitution of society. It was not Ex-Senator John J. Ingalls, of Kansas, was in the city for a brief period yesterday. He stopped at the Grand Hotel, where he was seen by a reporter and asked for his views upon several subjects. He says he will take an active part in the Republican campaign in Kansas this fall. He said he thought the conditions were ripe for a change in that State, for a long time the people were burdened and were easily misled. Now they are beginning to realize the hypocrisy that has been practiced upon them and will express their condemnation. He said he thought the Republicans would elect a majority of the members of the lower house of the Legislature and would have a majority on joint ballot, giv-ing them a United States Senator to succeed Senator Martin, who was appointed to fill an unexpired term. He thought neither the Republicans in Congress nor the Republican newspapers had made the most of the opportunity that had been presented to them. He said he could not recall a time when the Republicans had such opportunities. There has been too much good fellowship and not enough scourging. Cleveland has been held up as the original civil-service reformer, yet during his year in office he had done more to degrade it than all the other office holders in the country. He said there was no truth in the newspaper statements that he had been converted by Sam Jones. He said he had heard Mr. Jones for the first time, and simply expressed his appreciation of what the evangelist had said. He said he was not thinking of becoming an evangelist. he could not recall a time when the Re-

The School Commissioners Get the Training School Matter Disposed Of.

The School Commissioners held a special meeting last night for the purpose of approving the contract for the new industrial training school. The contract has been so changed as to provide for cement floors and filling instead of heavy timbers, or, in other words, the building will be fireproof instead of slow combustion as was originally planned. Architect Scherer did not think at first that it could be made fireproof without exceeding the limit of cost, namely, $150,000. After some correspondence, how-ever, a Cleveland company was found whose bid for the work of making the structure fireproof was so much less than had been anticipated that it was decided to spend a little more money and have the building just as desired. The additional expense is

The manual training committee report of its contract with John C. Pierson for the construction of the building was approved, as was also the latter's bond, in the sum of $77,900. The $5,000 check deposited by Mr. Pierson with his bid was ordered returned to him. The commissioners transacted no other business, adjourning after having approved the contract and bond.
